

Fuels Institute Annual Meeting and Fuels Summit 2014

The 2014 Fuels Institute Annual Meeting and Fuels Summit will be a very unique opportunity for attendees to engage in meaningful discussion to uncover the real facts about future market opportunities. While there are a variety of factors that influence the developing fuels and vehicles markets, this conference will focus intently on two major factors: consumer behavior/preference and environmental priorities/regulations.

Innovations in the fuels and vehicles industries are being driven by a desire to respond to consumer needs and wants and to meet environmental objectives and comply with regulations. But, which of these innovations will be sustainable in the long term and which simply might be temporary?

Through an exchange of views between speakers and the audience, attendees will develop a more informed and clear perspective on these questions. Where should attendees focus their attention? Which opportunities may deliver the most secure return?

The Fuels Institute's 2014 Annual Meeting and Fuels Summit will provide a forum through which you will be better able to answer these questions—and make better decisions about opportunities for the future.
