

Propel Fuels opens new Flex Fuel E85 station

The new Washington-based location was established alongside Road Warrior Travel Center and offers a new low cost, high performance fuel choice for customers.

Low carbon fuel retailer Propel Fuels has opened its first Flex Fuel E85 station in Washington State.

The company is partnering with the Road Warrior Travel Center to introduce a new low cost, high performance fuel choice to the Yakima Valley. As a leading E85 retailer across California, the brand is now connecting consumers to better fuels in the Pacific Northwest.

Propel has re-entered Washington State to provide solutions for the state's recently implemented Clean Fuel Standard (CFS).

"We're happy to be back home in Washington, where our company was founded almost 20 years ago, bringing the best clean fuels to customers, while promoting sustainability and supporting local economies," said Rob Elam, CEO of Propel Fuels.

Washington's CFS provides a boost to the low carbon transition, creating a market for the carbon reductions generated by the fuels.

Propel has opened an office in White Salmon, Washington and plans to continue expanding its partnerships with regional station owners to improve access to fast-growing low carbon fuels.